Spicy Pepitas

- Drizzle of extra-virgin olive oil, plus extra to serve
- 70 g (½ cup) pepitas (pumpkin seeds)

little and simmer for about 8 minutes. Drain and set aside to cool.

Pour the extra-virgin olive oil into a frying pan, add onion and sauté until onion starts to go transparent, then add the apricots and kale and lightly sauté for 2 minutes, until kale has softened and turned bright green. Then throw in your cooled buckwheat and toss it all together.

Now put a touch of olive oil in a small frypan and toast your pepitas. They will puff up a little – this is fun – then, just before you turn the heat down, add the paprika, chilli and salt. Toast for another minute or two.

Remove salad from heat, stir in the lemon zest and toss most of the pepitas through. Serve in a big bowl, drizzle with a dash of extra-virgin olive oil and sprinkle on the leftover pepitas – add a few more chilli flakes just like Lola Berry.
